RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

To have a paper included in the conference proceedings and be eligible for publication, at least one author of each accepted paper must register and pay the early bird registration fee before the full paper submission deadline. If multiple papers are accepted, a separate registration fee is required for each paper. However, if you are the sole author of two papers, only one registration fee is required to cover both.

This part generally consists of the results and the discussion. The research findings should be described in the first section of the results, along with the methodology, including original Figures and Tables. If modified Figure and Tables are displayed, proper references must also be provided. The rationale of the findings is covered in the second section of the discussion, along with how closely the findings align with or differ from previously published works.
